SPEEDER PAROLED IN CUSTODY OF BROTHER

First Use of the Commitment Law to Avoid Paying Fine by Auto Driver.

On Wednesday Paul Rosching was fined $50 in the municipal court by Judge Nashfield for violating the state statute that provides that automobiles shall not be run faster than five miles an hour in the city limits.
Under the law failure to pay the fine meant commitment to the Rock county jail for thirty days. Under the new law, which was passed by the last legislature, such commitment means that the sheriff must find labor for the persons thus committed. This afternoon Mr. Rosching appeared at the jail and under the workings of the new law, was paroled to his brother, E. J. Rosching, for the term of his sentence. This was done under Chapter 36, Section 697 (a) of the revised statutes of 1913. This is the first time that the new law has been invoked by any persons fined for speed violations but points out an easy way to avoid paying a fine for others in the future. Under the interpretation of the new commitment law, any person given a jail sentence by any court, must be found work by the sheriff and their pay turned over to those dependent upon them.

REPORT YOUR STUNT IN NONESUCH CIRCUS

Parade Committee Invites Performers to Notify Them As to the Nature of Their Act.

The committee in charge of the Nonesuch Bros.' circus parade for July 4th, invite all those desiring to participate in the parade which has made Janesville famous, to communicate at once with the chairman, Edward Amerpohl, or any of the following members: J. L. Culver, Howard Cuthbert, J. E. Hammann, or H. H.
Bliss, so that duplications of acts and attractions may be avoided. There are many people in the county and outlying towns who have in past exhibitions contributed a feature and to prevent this greatest amusement feature of the day. Rough-riders and equestrian acts generally are needed and the present indication is for the biggest parade, the greatest aggregation of good features ever gathered together. Don't forget to call by phone or write Edward Amerpohl, chairman Nonesuch Bros.' circus at the Janesville Floral company, and do it at once.

CREATES NEAR RIOT AT BOARDING HOUSE

Police Hold French Rug Peddler for Investigation After He Ran Down Street Half Clothed.

"Help! Murder! Police!"
Night Desk Sergeant Charles Dickson was idly sitting at his desk in the police room shortly after twelve o'clock last night, when these blood-curdling yells brought him to his feet, ready for action.

Across the street at the residence of Edward Gardner, 15 North Jackson, a half nude man was prancing up and down in the front bed room, shouting murder at the top of his voice and pounding upon the walls with an arm of a rocking chair. Bang, went the window by the time the officer reached the door, the figure of a man appeared on the roof and by the time the officer reached the sidewalk, the half clothed man jumped to the walk, a distance of ten or twelve feet and started running madly down the street. The policeman declared that he hit the ground
"a-running" and never stopped until captured by Policeman Cain at the bridge.

He was somewhat quieted down, and was placed in a cell at the city hall. Between gestures and a wild gabbling of French the officers came to the conclusion the man was safer behind the bars than prancing down Milwaukee street at midnight, half clothed. Occupants of the house were questioned and it was found that the man had come there in the afternoon for a room to spend the night and shortly after twelve started everybody in the neighborhood by breaking an arm from the chair and beating it upon the head of the bed, smashing plaster, and ended up by breaking a window, removing the screen and jumping to the ground, yelling bloody murder at every breath.

Police investigation this morning showed the name of the man to be Rondie Rhodine and that he had been peddling rugs about the city and came here from Madison. His room and clothes were searched and besides a small amount of money, the police found a state peddling license issued from Milwaukee to Abel Montant. A letter from a rug company gives his name as Rhodine and was addressed to 14 South Blair street, Madison.

The man had not been drinking and by gestures intimated he did not use liquor, but that three men were following him to rob him of his wealth.

A part of the fellow's money was found hidden in books in his bed room.
He will be held until further investigation is made and will probably be examined as to his sanity.

Meantime the police are endeavoring to find someone who can converse French to interpret questions which they wish to ask the stranger.

AMUSEMENTS AT MYERS THEATER.

A good sized audience witnessed the vaudeville performance at approaching last evening and were well pleased with the three special vaudeville acts. The Four McKies are artists when it comes to playing the guitar besides being exceptionally good dancers and comedians, giving some excellent Scotch dances. Farricola & Myers are a clever team who keep an audience happy while they're on the stage. Al Summers, an eccentric talking, dancing and musical act, has a worth while act. In addition to the regular vaudeville performances the motion pictures will be shown. Tonight Series No. 7 of the Lucille Love motion pictures will be shown. This picture has taken the country by storm and wherever shown each series eagerly awaited for by thousands of people who are following the series through to the end. The story of Lucille Love appears in story form in the Record-Herald and is shown weekly on Fridays at this theater.

THE APOLLO.

A vaudeville novelty that is unusual in its originality is Herman's Cats and Dogs which are appearing at the Apollo Theater for the latter part of this week. It is an act so different that it is bound to create a lot of interest.

George Landner, an eccentric singing and dancing comedian is also appearing this week. The feature attraction being "The Italian Music Master" an original playlet by the Cox family of five.

500-POUND METEORITE GUARDED FROM THIEVES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, June 5.—A 500-pound meteorite, composed of apatite, which recently fell on his ranch in Tuolumne county is being carefully guarded here today by J. W. Shores, a retired rancher. While Shores was sawing, June 5 last, he heard a rush of air and then felt a hot shower or heat sweep past him. It plunged into a nearby gulley, emitting intense heat.

Shores says that several attempts have been made to steal the meteorite.
He declares he has been offered $2,000 for it by a stockyard owner who intended to put the substance through a process to transform it into imitation opals.

THREE THOUSAND WORKERS ON STRIKE IN PITTSBURGH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Pittsburgh, June 5.—Approximately three thousand men and women, employes of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company, refused to go to work this morning. When the whistles at the East Pittsburgh factory sounded at seven o'clock, they formed a line and marched to the playgrounds at Turtle Creek, a mile from the factory. The strikers said they would discuss their grievances.

means is that the world won't accept his own exaggerated opinion of him-

Corns Go, Sure Pop, If You Use "Gets-It"

Simple As A B C. It's the New Way of Curing Corns and Calluses.

If you have corns now, the chances are you have never used "GETS-IT," the biggest seller among corn cures ever known. It is the new way, does away with all trouble, pain and fussing in treating corns.

Thousands who have pattered with old corns for years, have gotten rid of them right off with a few drops of "GETS-IT," applied as quick as you can spell your name. Corns just love to be cut, picked, filed, gouged and pulled. Quit that! You've tried cotton rings that cause shooting corn pains, greasy salves that spread over the toe and make it raw and tender that sticks to the stocking—now try "GETS-IT." It has none of the drawbacks of the old style corn cures, causes pain and never falls on any corn or callus.
"GETS-IT" is sold by all druggists, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by R. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

EXPECT HARD GAME AGAINST FOOTVILLE

Janesville Cardinals to Meet Footville White Sox at Driving Park Sunday.

Footville White Sox vs. the Janesville Cardinals will be the line of action in Janesville Sunday when the Cards will attempt to take the measure of the Footville ball tossers at the Driving Park diamond Sunday afternoon.

Considerable rivalry exists between these two nines and one of the best games of the year is expected. Last year the two nines broke even, the Footville aggregation defeating the Cards badly in the last game of the year, while the Janesville nine put one over on the White Sox early in the season. Butters or Crandall will twirl for the Cards, with Hall behind the rubber. Simmel and Silverthorn are billed as the battery for the visitors. A large crowd of Footville fans and fanettes are expected to witness the struggle.

The Janesville White Sox are scheduled to cross bats with the Fort Atkinson nine at the Fort Sunday. O'Hara and Biesdale will be the battery for the Sox.

Tooke's Taste in Tombs.

Nelson provided his own coffin, but there have been men who carefully prepared their own tombs. Horne Tooker was one. A large block of black Irish marble, specially procured for the purpose, was its most striking feature, and it was to be placed in his garden at Wimbledon, where he desired to be buried. But all his preparations were vain, for after his death it was decided that the presence of a tomb would "deteriorate the value of his estate," and he was buried in Ealing churchyard.—London Chronicle.

Wearing the new sun-glasses.

Wearing new-fangled sun-glasses is the latest thing in baseball.

The glasses are riveted to the peak of the cap and work on a hinge. When not needed to shield the eyes the glasses rest against the peak of the cap. When a ball is hit, the fielder simply touches the rim of the glasses and they fall down in front of his eyes and give him a chance to see the approaching ball while looking directly into the sun.

BEARDS THE LION.

Representative J. Hamilton Moore of Pennsylvania dared to beard the lion in the house of representatives recently when he said with reference to the labor bill passed by that august body:

"And if it be a crime, in the presence of the labor representatives who have been in the galleries dictating legislation for the last ten days, to make this declaration in favor of the rights of the workmen of the country, regardless of union or non-union, then I stand convicted before them. But before the people and before my conscience I am grateful for the opportunity to say that I would not vote for special legislation exempting crime, nor for the amendment offered me by the gentleman from Kansas who is playing politics and who has been playing to the galleries from one end of this debate to the other."

Mr. Moore spoke the truth. He proved himself to be a man. Not one of a "huddled mob of frightened cowards, legislating with one eye on the gallery, watching for the labor boss to turn down his imperious thumb," as the Wall Street Journal characterizes the incident.

Be it known that this legislation legalizes picketing, boycotting, and every infringement upon the constitutionally guaranteed rights of the citizen, at the behest of the labor bosses. That the supreme court of the United States would promptly throw such a law into the wastepaper basket, is neither here nor there. The same session of the house of representatives made guilt personal upon the employer, with heavy penalties, and handed the labor leader a license to commit crime.

Perhaps nothing in an age of progress, when private initiative has done so much to place the relations between employer and employee upon a humane and enlightened basis, is more humiliating to our thinking citizens, than this prostitution of the powers of legislation solemnly confided to representatives in congress.

But Representative Moore has branded this foul thing by its right name, in letters that the congressman with the most callous hide of them all cannot rub out. That nine-tenths of the many labor of this country, accepting no dictation from the labor boss or the servile things that do his behest in congress, will thank Mr. Moore, is certain.

Many of us will continue to differ from his political opinions. But he is a man; and the article scarce in Washington at this time.

SPIRIT OF VACATION.

In this day and age of twentieth century working pace every person who plays a part in the business world, in the keen struggle for modern existence, deserves a vacation. In other days, when the current of life moved more slowly than it does now, a vacation was not so much a matter of necessity. The chief objects to be sought in taking this respite are a variety, a change of air, of scene and of environment. Here is the great weakness in the argument of the vacation-at-home idea. This, it is true, gives rest, but if one wants to be freed mentally and physically as well as rested, they must seek entirely new environments, get out of the old ruts as it were.

Travel is becoming an increasingly popular way of spending a vacation. Ocean travel attracts many. If one loves the water this offers inducements as do the great lake regions and their steamship lines. But one does not have to leave this country to see wonders that even the old world can not boast of—Niagara Falls, Yellowstone park, Yosemite valley, the Grand Canyon of Colorado, and numerous other wonders. Here in Wisconsin we have lakes, woodland resorts, winding rivers and great stretches of water on two sides of our borders.

Right here at home we have the Rock, with its winding stream, its magnificent bluffs that tower above the water, its slopes that reach down from the hills behind them, its wooded knolls, springs that enhance the value of locations for cottages and summer retreats. Here is a vacation location without loss of time or travel. Here is opportunity right at the doors of those who want it.

The automobile, the trolley lines, the railroads are all convenient means of reaching out into places—spots where a complete change can be enjoyed. Where fish bite, boats can sail, launches chug along and the simple life enjoyed if desirable. There is no reason why vacation periods should not be enjoyed and now is the time to plan for them. For those that desire travel at a distance the Gazette has published a Travel Bureau, in which will be found time-tables and descriptions of resorts and how to reach them, the country over. It is open to the public for their use. Many avail themselves of it and more will doubtless do so when they realize it will aid them in their vacation plans.

So Governor McGovern has set all doubts at rest by announcing his candidacy for the job as United States senator. Thus far his only real opponent is Lieutenant Governor Morris on the republican side of the fence. As Morris is tinged with the La Follette brand and McGovern is standing on a platform which La Follette would wreck, he looks the best of the two. However, there is C. E. Estabrook of Milwaukee, also an aspirant for the job. He is of the good old-fashioned kind of republican and will doubtless play an important part in the campaign.

The Commercial club has stepped behind this new factory proposition and it is apparent now that the business men of the city realize that it is something that Janesville can not afford to allow to slip by without a strenuous effort to land. Everyone must put their shoulders to the wheel if it is to be successful.

The Roosevelt are to be entertained like royalty by the Spanish authorities on the occasion of the marriage of the youngest member of the family to the daughter of the American minister at Madrid. Perhaps Alfonso wishes he were as free as Roosevelt to go and do as he liked.

General Miles, in an address at St. Paul, announces that Roosevelt did not discover the "River of Doubt" in Brazil, and that even his famous charge up San Juan hill is questionable. Of course General Miles is now retired from active service, but just the same he is a brave man to thus dare the colonel.

Huerta is going to solve this A-B-C mediation problem to suit himself by ordering a blockade of the port of Tampico to keep the rebel forces from receiving arms and ammunition. This may have a serious effect upon the Niagara Falls conference and hurt Bryan's chances for that Nobel peace prize.

Former President Taft issues a word of warning against giving the Philippines their freedom. Aside from being president after having served as secretary of war, he has also had the honor of having been governor of the Philippines and knows whereof he speaks, so the public should take warning.

Remember that summer does not officially arrive until the 22d of the present month, so this spring-like weather, with plenty of cold rains, is really to be expected. This is merely an appetizer for the long, hot summer that is coming, so do not be discouraged.

Getting an Accident Policy. Accident policies will happen in the best regulated families. The last time we got one was a very simple matter. After the physical examination, which lasted three hours and a half, we were obliged to fill out a blank, answering the following questions:

Where were you born, and, if so, how much?

Did your grandfather have fits and how many? Did he have them frequently or every five minutes or so?

Do you expect to live until December, and, if so, what reason have you for doing so?

Where you ever killed before, and, if so, how many times? Please fill in particulars of each case.

Do you ride in automobiles or do you? This is important.

Do you engage in the pleasant but perilous occupation of trying to sell books from house to house on the installment plan? This is considered an extreme risk.

Did your grandfather ever have the mumps? How many and on which side—your father's or your mother's side?

Did you ever break your collar bone or your right forearm trying to button a sixteen collar on a fifteen shirt? If not, why not?

Do you believe in embalming or cremation?

Do you use liquor or patent medicine? How many times have you had the D. T.'s? Describe the zoological display you witnessed each time.

Do you go around looking for trouble or do your wife's folks come and visit you without being invited?

CHARGES REALTY MEN WITH LAND SWINDLE

S. C. HULL OF MILTON JUNCTION
ALLEGES HE WAS DECEIVED
BY JANSVILLE MEN.

SOLD LAND IN KANSAS

Alleges in Complaint That Phillip Doheny, Jr., and Six Others Engineered Deal Which Cost Him $11,260.

S. C. Hull, a farmer residing near Milton Junction, has filed a complaint in the circuit court of Rock county, charging six well known Rock county real estate men with an alleged conspiracy with intent to defraud him of approximately $11,260, through the sale to him of land in Thomas county, Kansas, for which he alleges he paid $40 per acre and which he now alleges to be worth about $7 per acre. The defendants named in the suit are Phillip Doheny, Jr., Charles E. Sweeney, William L. Kapke, Frank W. Fisher, R. N. Jacob, Thomas W. Donnelly and Ernest E. Krans.

Hull sets forth and alleges that Phillip Doheny, Jr., in November of last year, represented to him that he could purchase the land in Thomas county, Kansas, said to be the property of William L. Kapke, for the consideration of $40 an acre and that he might sell it for $47.50 an acre. Doheny claimed to have and is alleged to have shown Hull a letter from A. E. Cohen of Topeka, Kansas, in which an offer of $47.50 was made for the land.

On the strength of this prospect for an immediate sale of the land at a profit of $7.50 an acre, Hull agreed to buy the land of Kapke and contracted for the same with Kapke at $40 an acre during the latter part of November. Hull alleges he made an advance payment of $500 to Kapke at the time the contract was made out.

The details of the dealings which are alleged to have taken place subsequent to the drawing of the contract between Kapke and Hull, are rather complicated. They involve the elimination of the man Cohen as a possible purchaser of the land and the alleged introduction into the negotiations of Frank W. Fisher and Ernest E. Krans, the latter being alleged as a prospective buyer of the land at $50 an acre.

meantime, according to the allegations, Hull paid Kapke during the month of January the balance of the purchase price of the land less an incumbrance of $2,000, relying, as the plaintiff says, on the truth of the representations of the defendants. Phillip Doheny, Jr., Frank W. Fisher and Ernest E. Krans, that the land was worth more or could be sold for $50 an acre or thereabouts.

Hull alleges he paid Doheny a mortgage which he had on land in South Dakota and some $200 in cash as commissions for engineering the deal. Hull alleges that Donnelly and Jacob added in the alleged fraud by writing the letter which purported to be from the man Cohen. Hull alleges further that Sweeney was interested in the land sold by Doheny and alleges that Sweeney told him to keep quiet and not make any trouble about the deal and he, Sweeney, would sell the land at a figure high enough so that Hull would lose nothing, less a commission of $700.

The plaintiff alleges that he paid Kapke $500 for the land which he took subject to a $2,000 mortgage and that with the commissions paid to Doheny, the total amount was $14,000. He places the value of the title to which he acquired a $2,240 and in addition received $500 from Frank W. Fisher as an option, the sum of which two items is all he has left out of his $14,000, according to his allegations. He is suing in consequence for the balance of $11,260.

A FAMOUS YANKEE COMPOSER

Only those who lived during the Civil War can realize the power and influence exerted by the song "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," which was written by the slave, Henry Clay Work, who was born at Middletown, Connecticut, in 1832, was imprisoned in Missouri for helping a fugitive slave to escape. He was a printer by trade and wrote "Kingdom Come," "Bury My Bones Here," "Come Home, Dear Father, Come Home," "Come Home, Dear Mother, Come Home," and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." "Come Home" was a temperance song that never has seemed to lose its plaintive appeal. He was the author of "Grandfather's Clock," and at one time member of the music firm of Root & Tady, Chicago. His songs have been very popular in their time and still continue popular in the melodies of the old days.

United States Fruits Abroad.

Germany takes about one-half of the dried apples and the United Kingdom a like proportion of the green apples exported. Nearly one-half of the apricots went last year to France, Germany and the Netherlands, while the United Kingdom alone took one-third of the total.

Think of it, the four hundred most enduring songs ever written, all collected and bound together between two covers. Scores of them have been out of print for years but never forgotten, and handed down from mother to child and then to the child's children. Many of them would not be in the book if someone had not preserved in the family bible, or in the old scrap book, words and music clipped from some magazine or newspaper long since dead and brought forth yellow with age to lend their mite to making "HEART SONGS" the song book of the American people. Alone and unaided you could not gather together the songs in "HEART SONGS" in a lifetime. It took four years and the contributions of 20,000 people to do it.

SECRETARY REDFIELD TALKS AT RALEIGH

Secretary Redfield, who is both a statesman and a statesman, is even more so than he has been here. "Any world-wide view, therefore, of the great intricate mass of international transactions which we call the world's business," finds it in a state of depression almost everywhere, with ocean freights so low because of the shortage of international traffic on the part of the shipowners as to be beginning to consider whether it is not cheaper to lay their vessels up than to run them at a material loss.

A good deal has been made of the fact that our foreign business during the month of April shows a decrease in the exports of about 37 millions of dollars, and an increase in the imports of about 27 1/2 millions of dollars, and that the merchandise transaction for that month shows an apparent balance against us somewhat in excess of 10 millions of dollars, and glowing conclusions as to the effects of the war have been drawn by high-sounding speakers from rather meager data, looking plainly at the facts, we find them to be as follows:

During April the increase of imports, which we have 5 million more than in the corresponding month of the year, is in the following items:

Crude materials for use in our manufactures, 12 1/2 millions; raw materials, 10 1/2 millions; manufactured goods, 10 1/2 millions.

There is an aggregate of 23 1/2 millions out of a total increase of 27 1/2 millions, which is entirely in the nature of a net increase in our imports. The balance is made up of an increase in finished manufactures of 2 millions, showing a net increase in all imported manufactures of 2 millions, or about 5 per cent as compared with the month of April a year ago.

Turning now to the exports for the month of April, in which there is a decrease of 37 millions for that month, and 10 millions of it in crude material for manufacture, 14 millions in finished manufactures, over 5 millions in raw materials, making a total of 29 millions. That 1 million of 27 millions is in fully finished manufactures, this last item showing the smallest ratio of decrease for the month of any of the great groups.

In other words, it is in the finished manufactures that we have held our proportion of the best.

On the day when this was written the secretary of labor read in the chamber of commerce a telegram from the labor authorities of Missouri stating that 20,000 men were needed in that state to help harvest the crops. Another telegram from the labor commission of the state of Kansas calling for 10,000 men for that state for a like purpose was read, and at the previous session he had read a dispatch from the labor commissioner of Oklahoma stating that 15,000 men were needed there.

It is true that a psychological depression is none the less a depression because it is psychological. We may therefore fairly look into other conditions to see whether the mental state that exists has a justification in solid fact.

It is true, it is not, as one looks over the country, that all the conditions, in fact, which business should rest upon, in full force and vigor. Few will contend that merchants are overstocked. Rather is the reverse true. None are so rash as to say overproduction exists. None are so foolish as to say overproduction exists. The country is suffering from a lack of confidence. Money is not so scarce that banks refuse legitimate borrowers. The reverse is true. We have sent large sums abroad of late without cramping our financial resources. It comes to me from more than one quarter of the country that men who are pessimistic in speech are prosperous in pocket. Things are not tied up, then, when New York bankers more automobiles than ever before, and when that great industry is pushed to the full.

If you and I get away from the crowded centers of our middle and eastern states where mental harping exists for conditions that can never return since the day of mastery is over and commerce must henceforth be a servant—if I say, we get away from these centers into which the light of freedom has not yet fully illuminated, we shall find a different atmosphere. From far off California and from Florida, from the fields of Oklahoma and Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, come the cries of harvest and the ripeness of the sickle. There was no mourning in the orange groves of California, when I saw them in March, and Florida notes no cry of distress in sending 25,000 carloads of her fruit to market.

It is a small and pitiful thing that men should expect to reap political profit out of magnifying evils. However, the too willing howls of the parasites of evil are so obvious, as well as so previous as to be on the whole more humorous than harmful. They make the justifiable grievance they bring no anxiety to the thoughtful.

LIFE IS VERY DEAR TO EXILED MEXICAN

Dr. Urrutia, Former Member of Huerta's Cabinet, To Remain in United States.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Galveston, Texas, June 5.—Since his arrival here aboard the transport Hancock, with his wife and six children, Dr. Aureliano Urrutia, formerly minister of the interior in the cabinet of Dictator Huerta, has decided to remain in America for an indefinite time.

Simultaneous with his decision to make his home in the United States comes a report from Mexico City that his friends are concerned over the disappearance of his only daughter, who was left behind in the capital when Urrutia fled to Vera Cruz. It is feared that she has been sacrificed in retaliation of her father's sanctuary deeds, by kinmen of persons who suffered death because they attended Huerta and Urrutia.

Urrutia's presence in the United States is due both to his break with Huerta and a wider belief in Mexico that he was implicated in the disappearance and death of Senator Belisario Dominguez and Deputy Luis Manuel Rojas. Dominguez and Rojas, with other enemies of Huerta, were sent during the days of their early imprisonment to Dr. Urrutia's sanitarium at Coyacan, on the outskirts of Mexico City. Ostensibly for medical treatment, these prisoners, under the supervision of Dr. Urrutia, were sent to death almost invariably. Dominguez went to the sanitarium soon after he made a speech attacking Huerta, and it has since been charged that his body was cremated before he was dead.

The former minister's sanitarium is still receiving patients, under the charge of an assistant. It was to have been sold to the government for use as a military hospital, but after Huerta had agreed to pay 3,000,000 pesos the option was revoked. This is supposed to have caused the strained relations between the two.

Urrutia was the author of the ultimatum giving the United States twenty-four hours within which to recognize Huerta's government, under pain of having Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy given his passports. This ultimatum was adopted at a night meeting of the cabinet, and was not sent only because of the protests of Frederico Cambo, then minister of foreign affairs.

On the day when this was written the secretary of labor read in the chamber of commerce a telegram from the labor authorities of Missouri stating that 20,000 men were needed in that state to help harvest the crops. Another telegram from the labor commission of the state of Kansas calling for 10,000 men for that state for a like purpose was read, and at the previous session he had read a dispatch from the labor commissioner of Oklahoma stating that 15,000 men were needed there.

RUSSIAN DREADNAUGHT LAUNCHED AT ODESSA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Odesa, June 5.—The third stage in Russia's ambitious naval program for the Black sea was concluded today with the successful launching of the dreadnaught Ekastorina II at the Nikolaievsk navy yard.

The two dreadnaughts already launched, and soon to go into commission, are the Empress Maria and the Alexander III. The fourth, the Ivan Terrible, is to be laid down on the ways vacated by the Ekastorina II. The six destroyers and the six submarines, included in the program, have already been completed, and two armored cruisers are building. There is also being constructed one of the largest floating docks in the world, capable of carrying a vessel of 40,000 tons. It will cost $2,000,000.

Notwithstanding this formidable force, naval experts say that Turkey would have a decided advantage on the Black sea in the event of war between the two countries, as the Russian dreadnaughts are to be armed with only 12-inch guns, as against guns of 13-inch and 15-inch respectively on the two battle cruisers recently acquired by the Turkish government, one from Brazil and the other now completing in England. The longer range of the Turkish gun

NORWEGIAN MUSIC LOVERS ARRIVE IN CHICAGO FOR TWO SAENGESTERFEST CONCERTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, June 5.—Music loving Norwegians from all over the middle west gathered here today for the two big saengerfest concerts to be given in Orchestra hall tonight and tomorrow night under the auspices of the Norwegian Singers' Association of America.

More than forty Norwegian singing societies, with 1,000 singers, will be represented in the grand choruses that are to feature each evening's entertainment. Chicago, Minneapolis, Duluth, Moorhead, Minn., Milwaukee, Fargo, N. D., Sioux Falls, S. D., and many other cities with large Scandinavian populations have delegations here. A big picnic in Riverview park will be held Saturday.

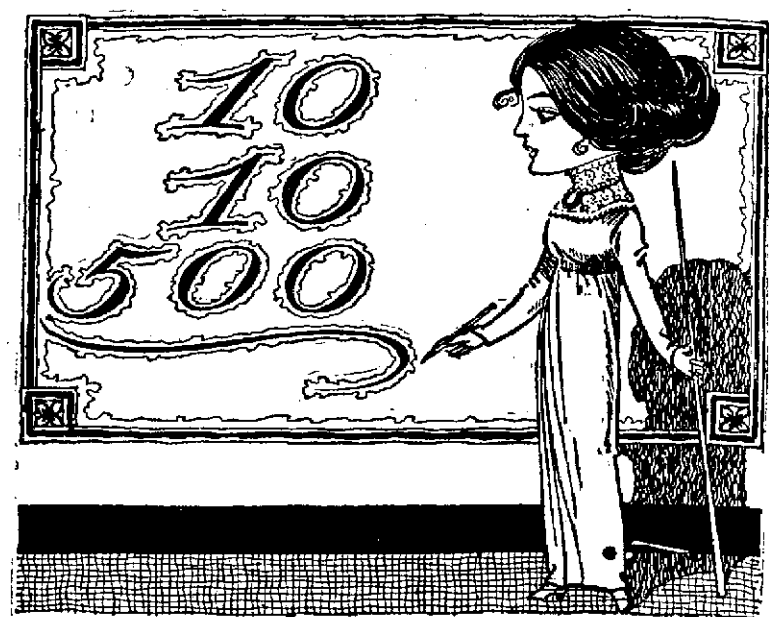

Several of the singers participating in the concerts here will leave next week for Norway to take part in the Christiania centennial celebration. Enroute to the old country they will organize a singing society that will tour the principal Norwegian cities.

Every time a wise man makes a mistake he learns something. Some musicians put on more airs than they can play.

NEW JERSEY LAD SEEKS GOVERNORS' SIGNATURES TO SHOW AT EXPOSITION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., June 5.—Sidney H. Duggott, a sixteen-year-old school boy of East Orange, N. J., has conceived the idea of exhibiting at the Panama-Pacific exposition next year the signatures of all of the governors of the different states on a leather top to a table. Through Miles C. Riley, secretary of the governors' conference, the leather top was presented to Governor McGovern this morning for signature. It already bore the signatures of President Wilson and Governor James F. Fielder of New Jersey. The moment was sent here in anticipation of the conference of governors, which has been postponed until November, in the belief that a large number of the signatures could be secured at one time.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WASTED WORRY.

"Don't succumb to grim despair,
But remember when you're glum
That the hardest things to bear
Are the things that never come."
—LIFE.

All the worry over things that never come could be taken out of our lives how little there would be left.

A friend of mine has recently lost her husband and gone home to live with her father and mother. They are elderly people who could not have been left to live alone much longer, and for the past few years their daughter has been anxious about them.

"Why, I never worried about John," she said to me the other day. "I always thought he'd outlive me. But I used to be so anxious about father and mother. It didn't seem right with mother so feeble to leave them by themselves much longer. Besides I was afraid she might break down completely any time, and then what would I do? I want to be with mother, of course, but they'd hate to leave the old homestead and John wouldn't bear to give up his home either; and I awake nights and plan and worry about it. And now the trouble that I never worried about has come to me, and the trouble that fretted me has cleared itself up."

How much trouble we waste in this way. If one may speak of wasting a thing which is perfectly futile and useless.

Worry, even over a thing which does happen, is wasted energy because it cannot do any good. It is doubly wasted when we fret and fume over something which never comes to pass.

You may have heard of Mrs. Silas Bennett's experience. When her neighbors were condoling with her upon a certain misfortune she answered:

"I've raised three girls and four boys, expectin' every time they'd be raisin' and red-headed like their Gran-pa Bennett, and yet they ain't."

"An' I've worried considerable over smallpox breakin' out in my big family."

"But, 'tut, 'tut."

"Last summer, durin' July an' August, an' mebbe part of September, I was real melancholic, fearin' I'd got an appendix, but I guess I ain't."

"An' through it all, it never once occurred to me that I'd be the one to fall through them rotten old meetin'-house steps an' break my leg in two places, but I be."

How many times, like Mrs. Bennett, we worry over the wrong things! How many problems, like that of our fretful hands and settles for us!

Have you not seen a pool of water so clear and undisturbed that it seemed as if it would never clear? If you should attempt to stir the mud and clear the water that way what success would you have? But let it alone, let time and the forces of nature work, and in the water clears itself!

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two friends thirteen years old. Please advise us in the following questions:

(1) Is it wrong for a Christian to go to theaters or automobile rides on Sunday?

(2) Is it wrong for a young girl of our age to read books such as "St. Elmo," "Lavender," and "Old Accidents," and "The Master's Violin"?

(3) What do you think of a boy who whisks at a girl? Is it wrong for her not to look at him then?

(4) How can we make all our friends love us?

LIGHT EYES AND DIMPLES.

(1) To be a Christian means that you believe in Christ's teachings and try your level best to be as good and as kind as he was. Different churches have different trimmings to this, but this is the foundation. Some Christians believe it is very wrong to go to theaters and on automobile rides on Sunday. Others think it is no harm. When people work very hard all week and have no time for recreation on any day but Sunday, I do not think the Lord will hold it against them if they enjoy themselves in a perfectly respectable way on the Sabbath.

(2) I do not think these books will harm you, my dears. When I was your age I enjoyed Walter Scott's and Charles Dickens' stories very much. There is no harm in them. Just don't notice the wink.

(3) By being lovable, little girls; that means that you will be considerate of others' feelings and try to make others happy.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I ask you to help me out, as you are very good. I am a married woman and have three little girls.

(1) I am sued for divorce from my husband. I am a housekeeper for an old man and I have my children with me; he is an old man. Is there any Household Hints.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To remove hot water marks from japanned trays use sweet oil. Rub it in well all the marks disappear. Then wash the tray with dry flour and a soft cloth.

Starch should be mixed with soapy water, for thus the linen will have a more glossy appearance and be less likely to stick to the iron.

If a slice of lemon with the rind removed is placed in a wash boiler when white clothes are being boiled, the result will be clothes beautifully clean and white without being injured in any way.

To remove machine grease from clothes without taking the color out, rub the spot with a solution made of cold water, ammonia and soap.

THE TABLE.

Sardine Salad—Drain the oil from a box of sardines, then squeeze three drops of lemon juice on each fish and let them stand on the ice for one hour. Arrange crisp lettuce leaves on a chilled platter and place a sardine on each leaf, with one spoonful of mayonnaise dressing poured over each. Garnish the edge of the platter with cold boiled beets cut into fancy shapes. Serve with crackers and cream cheese.

Salmon Mayonnaise—Boil seven or eight eggs hard, then peel them and lay them on the ice for five pieces of canned salmon into one cupful of mayonnaise. Line the salad bowl with lettuce leaves, arrange the sliced eggs on the leaves and pour over them the salmon mayonnaise. Save some of the eggs to garnish with.

Crab Salad—Mix the crab meat which has been cut into small pieces with a French dressing and the stand one hour. Then mix with an equal quantity of tender celery which has been cut into half-inch lengths. Add a mayonnaise dressing and serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with crab claws.

Asparagus Salad—Cut the tender parts from one bundle of boiled asparagus into pieces of the same length and tie them in bundles, then cook them in boiling salted water and put them on ice. When about to serve put the asparagus into a salad bowl and pour over it a French dressing.

Cucumber Salad—Select three firm cucumbers, peel and cut into halves lengthwise. Scoop out the seeds and then lay them on the ice for half an hour. Make a filling of very finely chopped celery and blanched walnut meats, also chopped. Mix thoroughly with a French dressing, then fill the cucumber shells about fifteen minutes before serving and place a piece of parsley at each end of the stuffed cucumbers.

NEW BATHING SUITS OF BRILLIANT HUES

Time Over When Feminine Points Were Frankly Revealed, but Fashion Now Demands Eushels of Clothes.

(By Margaret Mason.)

When Mabel and Tossio, who both are quite dainty, go out for a stroll in the park, their garments so slinky, transparent and skimpy, seem almost a take-off—but mark:

When they take a notion to dip in the ocean, they pile on such flubdub galore, such bustles and ruffling, such founcing and puffing, that even the ocean waves roar.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, June 5.—To be truly fashionable when you take a dip in the sea this summer you must put on more clothes than you take off. Time was when the bathing beach was the vantage ground where all feminine fine points were frankly revealed. Now all the revealing is done in the maris, the public restaurants and theaters, while the charms of the belle of the bathers are as completely hidden under the up-to-date bathing costume as the light under the proverbial bushel.

Skirts are longer than heretofore and the pantalolet a la mode is glimpsed generously below in ruffled and ruffled glory. Panniers of different colors are running and together with bustle effects in their buoyant buoyancy will no doubt cause a decided slump in the demand for "wings," bladders and cork belts by timorous swimmers.

Brilliant colors that are fast and certainly look it are another feature, and rubber flowers made into corsage bouquets are the last gasp in aquatic fashioning. Imagine what a snappy effect a shower of pink rubber roses will add to your bathing suit and the springy touch imparted by a bunch of purple rubber violets is sure to win at the stretch. Certainly nobody could classify these elastic violets as belonging to the shrinking variety.

One of the most popular models of a 1914 bathing suit is of blue or black tulle with a deep girle of bright blue or black Roman striped silk and trimmed in the striped or plaid trimming.

The waist is open down the front to the waist line and filled in with a vest of sheer white muslin with an upstanding collar of the same material. Flaring cuffs of muslin finish the long sleeves and the ruffles edging the full pantalolet are piped in the girle silk.

A bright green satin costume has a tunic scooped on the edge, a low neck waist blouse with a scooped Galstone collar of the satin, and puffed elbow sleeves finished with a scooped ruffle as are the puffy bloomers. A deep girle of the satin spans the waistline and no other color or trimming relieves this study in green.

A striking black tulle suit has hectic panniers and bustle of tullest silk and a V-shaped just of the same placed point downward in the skirt. Another purple satin suit panniered in poisonous purple and green striped silk has a bunch of violets at the belt.

A bright red satin shows a skirt entirely composed of four scooped ruffles. The pendant of fair bathers for this scooped trimming is probably accounted for by the desire to prove that quite as many good scoops go into the sea as come out of it.

The newest sandals are in bright satin to match the bathing suit and are built like the late tangi slippers with divers straps. Nothing could be more apropos than a deep sea green slipper with divers straps to cover an under too, now could there?

The sandals that perform the aquatic feat of covering bathing feet and the chic flower trimmed hats that top the hirsute waves that top the ocean waves are not the salient features of the newest bathing suits, however. The really striking innovations after all are the superabundance of bustle, panniers and puffs. The minute you get one on you are bound to belong to the floating population.

Mr. Peach, before leaving town on a business trip, instructed his wife's nurse to apprise him of the arrival of the stork. She obliged with the following telegram: "Mrs. Peach has a pair."—Judge.

Women Worth While

MISS FOLA LA FOLLETTE.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.

Miss Fola La Follette, daughter of Senator and Mrs. La Follette, is the infant prodigy with the capital letters.

Knowing that Miss La Follette has established a reputation for herself as a public speaker, and as an actress of ability, and that she has found time to be educated and to get married in between times, one is hardly prepared at a first meeting to find her a mere slip of a girl. And when she begins to talk, seriously and with marked intelligence, about such things as economic conditions and a franchise for women, her youthfulness is still more impressive.

Two years ago Miss La Follette was married to the New York playwright, George Middleton. Even in private life, however, she is not known as Mrs. George Middleton. She is to all her friends, as to the public, still Miss Fola La Follette, and her deportment there in New York bears her own name just beneath that of her husband.

Some married people are united only in name. With the Middletons, or rather with Mr. Middleton and Miss La Follette it is different. They may not have the same name, but they have work, interests and faith in common. Mr. Middleton writes plays; Miss La Follette acts them. They are both active advocates of the suffrage cause. Together they are interested in labor problems and sociological questions. So Miss La Follette writes with evident sincerity:

"It is a blessed thing when a woman has not two or three interests, but all interests, in common with her husband."

Miss La Follette has recently appeared in a play written by Mr. Middleton, entitled "Nowadays." Though it is not a play for women's suffrage and is handled with a light comedy touch, its plot centers about a feminine problem. A year ago last winter

Miss La Follette played the leading role in "Tradition," a play written by her husband and produced at the Berkeley theater in New York as a benefit for the suffrage party and for the National Woman's Suffrage association. The season before she played in Percy Mackaye's "Scarecrow."

Both Miss La Follette and Mr. Middleton are giving much of their time at present to the promotion of the Actors' Equity association, of which Francis Wilson is president. The object of the association is to organize the actors and actresses of the American stage in order to secure from managers concessions that will make the actor's lot an easier one.

When Miss La Follette is not acting she is usually speaking from some public platform for the suffrage cause. "As a child," she told me, "I never heard the question of woman's rights debated, as both my mother and father have always believed so strongly in the righteousness of the cause."

You know my mother studied law, and has an unusually thorough knowledge of economics and labor conditions, and of public affairs. So we children never knew what it was to differentiate between a woman's opinion on those subjects and a man's. We grew up believing that it was just as right for women as for men to think and to act in constructive affairs of the world.

"Yes, I give the anti-suffragists credit for perfect sincerity in believing they can retard the progress of the suffrage cause, and for sincerity in believing they ought to retard it. Of course, they are mistaken, but they are sincere."

Question—What shall I do for the black and yellow striped beetles that appear on my squash and cucumber vines?

The very best "remedy" for this little pest, the striped squash beetle, is an "oil of prevention." This is accomplished by covering each hill soon after planting, with boxes, or "trench frames," which may be bought or may be easily manufactured at home by using pine boards about 1/2 of an inch thick by 3 inches wide, making them into boxes just large enough to be covered by 10x20 or 16x24 double-stick glass, and laid in place on three sides by small nails, driven part way in and beat over. The glass will then slide out and in or may be opened part way on hot or rainy days. Or, a simpler way is to cover the boxes by tacking on cheese cloth or mosquito netting. These boxes are placed over the hill and kept there until the vines are large that they outgrow them. They aid in extermination and keep off the beetles. When the vines have outgrown the boxes it will be large enough to resist the attacks of the beetle. Another method is to discourage them by the use of lime or wood ashes sprinkled over them when with dew. Paris green or arsenate of lead is also used in the same way in which it is used on potato plants.

Question—What are the little green worms on my rose bushes and how may I prevent their ravages?

Answer—These are the "grubs," so-called, the greatest enemy of our roses. As they work by sucking the thing for them is kerosene emulsion. It is made as follows: Dissolve 1/2 oz. of kerosene in 1/2 cup of soft boiling water. Put it into a can of kerosene and beat with a Dover egg beater until it forms a creamy mass of about twice its original bulk. Dilute this by adding two quarts soft water and apply in misty spray.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, June 5, 1874.—The gas company are availing themselves for the summer season, when the demand for gas is highest, to make some necessary improvements in their works. A new gas holder is to be built and the old one reserved for emergencies. The pipes used to convey the gas from the reservoirs through the various changes for purification to the gas holder are to be replaced by new ones of increased size. This is for the purpose of relieving the pressure on the reservoirs, and also for the reason that the old pipes, which have been in operation eighteen years, are worn out. The gas holder now in use is forty feet in diameter and sixteen feet deep.

Some days ago we published the offers of the Silsby Manufacturing company to exchange company to exchange or to repair the rotary engine on win use on the west side of the river. We now publish the offers of other manufacturing companies, which apparently put the Silsby proposition entirely in the shade. The Button Manufacturing company of Watertown, N. Y., has a second-hand engine in good condition worth $5,000, with all the latest improvements, which they offer for $3,000, and they will allow $1,000 for the old rotary in which nobody is inclined to take much stock.

Arrests of ticket agents may be expected every day. The war is to be fought out on this line if it takes all summer. Three cents is the public ultimatum.

The memorial letter to Hon. Matt. Carpenter inviting him to Janesville July Fourth to deliver an oration was sent yesterday.

The cantata, eventuated in a clear gain of $100 to the management, and but for the unpropitious weather the amount would have been much larger. Receipts, $160; expenditures, $60.

The river is now so low that the overflow at the dam has almost entirely ceased.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

N. B. The following is a communication received without a signature, which was noted in a recent issue of the Gazette. Following it is the second letter received, which bears the writer's signature. The questions asked are respectfully referred to the city attorney for an answer. Editor,

To the Editor of the Gazette:

As a subscriber to your paper, a citizen and a tax payer, I would like to ask through the columns of your paper if our city attorney, Mr. J. H. Council will please inform us through the columns of this paper whether there is any ordinance prohibiting the pasturing of cows on vacant lots in the city district, right next to apartment buildings that are supposed to be rented to the best people, I know I am voicing the sentiment of a large number of people when I ask: Have we no ordinance to prohibit this?

The Reply.

Editor Gazette:

I see that you ask for the signature in all articles, and will say that the inquiry which I wrote in regard to the pasturing of cows is a matter of civic interest, therefore will sign it confidentially, as the particular cow I had reference to bawls some days last day and its owner is enough to make us all distracted. Besides, she is often fed in such a way that she has the freedom of the sidewalk right on a public street. One of the ladies in the apartment building referred to told me that they left the farm and came to town to live in order to get away from those disagreeable things, but sold even on the farm they never had cows switching flies right under their dining room window, as they had last summer in this apartment building, and the same this summer so far.

Remarkable Life Of A Pair Of Boots Made In 1872

Philo Thomas, a resident of the town of La Prairie, evidently holds the secret of solving one phase of the high cost of living, in so far as the wearing of footwear is concerned. A pair of the old style leather boots, the knee high variety as worn by the pioneers, was brought to the shop of G. A. Moore for repairs recently and an interesting history was given of them.

The boots, Mr. Thomas declared, were over forty-two years old, having been made in the spring of 1872 by Gilbert Evenson, who now resides with his son William Evenson, 336 Milton avenue. At the time of the purchase, the boots were the pride of the neighborhood, being bought for the go-to-church day and were the correct model of fashion. Since that time they have been brought into steady use and are worn nearly every day by Mr. Thomas, who declares they are the acme of ease and comfort. Much to the surprise of Mr. Moore, the boots were not even ripped and the thread still intact and the uppers showed very little effect of forty-two years of wear and were practically as good as new. They had not rotted out, but since 1872 and Mr. Thomas said that he would be able to wear and use the boots for at least ten years more.

When the history of his ancient pair of boots became known to Mr. Moore, he called Mr. Philo Evenson to his shop without telling him what he wished to see him for.

Mr. Evenson, after examining the boots, identified them and told more of their history. The story told by Mr. Evenson was that he made three pair of the boots from an imported French calf hide in the spring of 1872 on special orders. The pair purchased by Mr. Thomas were hand sewed throughout with the best thread obtainable, and cost $12. Two other pairs were made from the same hide, which were sold to the late John J. R. Pease and to a man named Wadsworth, who later moved from Janesville. The other two pairs were not hand sewed but lived long past the ordinary life of boots, even as made in those days.

Mr. Evenson is eighty-nine years of age, but despite his advanced age takes an active interest in life and almost daily visits his friends downtown. In July he is planning to make a visit to his other son, Charles, who resides in Baraboo, but makes his home in Janesville where he has lived nearly all his life.

When in the shoemaking business, Mr. Evenson was in partnership with Mr. O. H. Myhr, and one of their shops was at the present location of the Gas Company's office. Pioneer residents of this city declare that Mr. Evenson was second to none, as a maker of fine footwear, but proof of this is more certain than gold, and considers the life and use of the pair of boots for a period of forty-two years. One shoeman ventured to remark that he modern shoe would not hold together, if placed in a box and laid for a like number of years on a shelf.

BORDEN TO OPERATE A STEMMING PLANT

Handling of Low Grades Will be Started Shortly at Local Sorting Room.—Crop Prospects.

The F. G. Borden company will operate a stemming plant in this city this season. The same company will also handle the low grades at Whitehall and La Crosse while the Lorillard company of Madison and the Pinkerton company at Watertown will operate at their respective cities. At Edgerton T. B. Earle will have a large force of work for both brothers and W. Dickinson will have factories at Readstown and Edgerton.

The tobacco growers of Wisconsin are experiencing less trouble in securing a market for their crop than in many years past, says the Edgerton Reporter. The greatest fear at this writing is that the plants are too forward and the work of transplanting, even before the field are ready to receive them. An exceptionally warm and moist May has given the plant beds such a phenomenal start that transplanting in some cases will be started the first week in June—almost two weeks ahead of the usual date of general planting in this state. So much wet weather has set in that the tobacco growers will be busy times for the tobacco growers until the crop is pitched in the fields.

The scarcity of suitable help is a handicap to growers, but by putting in long hours they will manage in some way to surmount the difficulty. The soil has been put in fine condition of tilth by the recent rains and so far this season seems promising. Given decent weather conditions the coming month and the new tobacco crop promises to have a good start.

Bag-Pipes and Folk Dances Give Real Highland Flavor to Star Act at Myers Theatre.

Inspiring music played on the bagpipes, highland reels and Scottish folk dances, together with a selection of light songs, compose the act of the four McKies, the headliners at the Myers vaudeville program this week. Patricia and Myers introduce some original stunts in their singing and dancing act. The program promises to be a musical genius and something of a singer and monologue artist as well. Together with the Universal motion picture program this week's bill deserves to be called "high class."

STOP DRINKING

Sobriety is a factor in everyday life. No matter what a man's occupation may be he can not give his best attention to his work if the senses be dulled by the effects of alcohol. By constant drinking every man arrives at a stage where alcohol no longer stimulates but is a positive poison to his system. Hence the necessity of treatment to get that poison out of the system and to restore it to normal conditions.

Old time liquor cures were dangerous, long drawn-out and failed to give results. The Neal Treatment is progressive; it is safe, sane and scientific; it eradicates the alcoholic poison, takes away all craving, desire and appetite for liquor and in a few days enables the drinking man to face the world a clean, healthy person, free from the habit, clear of eye and keen of mind. THE COMING OF THE KINGDOM.

(THE STORY.)

No doubt there was irony in the Pharisees' question about the coming of the Kingdom. It is as if they had said, mockingly, "You are talking of it?" This Jesus answered, "The Kingdom is found in the very fact that, while it has come already, you have not so much as observed it." It is a kingdom seen by the soul, not by the senses. It is a new ethical condition, a fresh moral order in the individual. It is righteousness, peace, and joy, and being such, there can be neither when nor where to it. It is useless to say "Here" or "There," or to ask, "When?" The Kingdom is subjective. It is within the individual. To his disciples, in whose hearts the Kingdom was already established, Jesus now added some words which the Pharisees could not be expected to understand. His affirmation of the original, subjective nature of the Kingdom is not of necessity the denial of any possible future objective manifestation. In point of fact, a visible Kingdom is now affirmed. Jesus is very careful not to fix the flame which he had so sedulously sought to quench. He opens no vista to glory and power, to the pomp and circumstance of temporal sovereignty. On the contrary, he shows only a way of sorrow for himself and his followers. He must suffer and be rejected. He warns them not to fall away from him, but to remain faithful, after his departure, to the patient waiting for his return, which would naturally make them easy victims of false Messiahs. His return will not be clandestine. It will be as quick, clear, and observable as the shaft of lightning which the storm hurled across the whole heaven. This is transparent to us all today, whether it was or not to those to whom the words were originally spoken, that there is here a "coming" within a "coming." The coming of Jesus is a "Lord's coming," a coming of commercial and domestic will go on just as before Noah's flood or Lot's fire. But let the disciples be alert to escape. Instantaneous and unburdened flight will be the only safety. Tradition says that by this very token the Christians in the doomed city escaped to Pella. Those upon the rooftop fled down the outer staircase, not going into the house to gather up anything, and the laborer who had not even going to the end of the row to get his coat. The talismanic words of Jesus, "Remember Lot's wife!" may well have served as their watchword. But Jesus is far from being exhausted by its application to the bloody downfall of Israel's capital. There is still another "coming," to which it is the dictate of highest wisdom to give earnest heed. In view of one must need keep himself detached from worldly things as of chiefest value. To gain the lower now is to lose the higher hereafter. In this case to think of one's goods instead of "the Good" is to be like Lot's wife. It is to eat, drink, and marry, as men did on the eve of the flood. It is to buy, sell, build, and plant, as they did up to the very doom of Sodom. That coming will be the true dividing time, startling and irreversible. Justification will not prevent separation. Of two in the same bed or at the same handmill, one will be ranked with the damned, while the other is left with the lost. Jesus answer to the question, "Where?" is no more satisfactory than was his answer to the question "When?" He is designedly enigmatical. He simply quotes a familiar proverb, "Where carrion, there vultures!" His purpose is to show that the coming of the Kingdom is no more a matter of geography than of the calendar.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

This is pre-eminently a call to watchfulness. The intensity of Jesus' desire that men shall be ready for the transcendent event is shown in the fact that he repeats it eight times in substantially the same form. Even the names which the early Christians gave their children show the deep impression which it made. For example, Gregory and Vigilantius are both derived, one in Greek and the other in Latin, from a verb signifying "to watch." It has been said, sententiously, that whoever seeks the Kingdom of God outside of himself loses it within himself. That authentic fragment, "Sayings of Jesus" (A. D. 143), contains this remarkable parallel passage: "The Kingdom is within you, and whosoever shall know himself shall find it." Pompeii may be added to the "Cities of the Plain" as an instance of instantaneous destruction in the hey-day of pleasure. No one who has seen the petrified human bodies in the Museum at Naples can be dubious about the fate of Lot's wife. Jesus gave two answers to the same question. To those who knew nothing of the Kingdom he said, "It is within you," for that was the first step. To those who already possessed the inward Kingdom he could safely promise the external manifestation in addition. "To his Kingdom shall be no frontier!" is the significant inscription on a Syrian fragment lately unearthed.

The General Court of one of the colonies was sitting on a day when a preternatural darkness covered the heavens. There was great fear and consternation. But out of the gloom came the voice of the presiding officer, calm and clear, as he said, "I know not, but this may be the last day; but if it should be, I desire that the Lord shall find us at the work in hand. Let candles be brought in and the business proceed!"

ANALYSIS AND KEY.

An ironical question: "Where is the Kingdom?" Here, yet undetected. Evidence of its invisible character. Substance of Kingdom subjective. Righteousness, peace, joy. New ethical condition. New moral order. An esoteric message. Subjective, not denial of objective. Ultimate manifestation affirmed. Christians forewarned, forearmed. The Young People's Devotional Service.

Vision of God is the most desirable thing in the world. Not for the mere ecstasy of it, however, but for the interpretation of life. Seeing God is seeing one's self, origin, capacities, obligations, destiny! And heart-purity is the only medium through which God can be seen.

Encouraging Theory.

The encouraging theory recently advanced that the mineral elements of the soil are inexhaustible seems to be borne out by the fact that Chinese soils are among the richest in the world after 4,000 years of intensive cultivation.

Sailors' Ability to Sleep.
Sailors and doctors are, perhaps, the only people who can always sleep at will. The sailor, as he will tell you, can "sleep as well on a clothes-line as on a feather bed." He simply throws himself down, closes his eyes, and is asleep before you can say "Jack Robinson."

Pessimistic Reflection.
In our pessimistic moments we are prone to reflect that, no matter what time of year it is, the pie always seems to be made from last year's apples.—Milwaukee Journal.

Consistent Users of the Want Ad Page Are Enthusiastic Over the Results Obtained By Them

Efficiency

"When you and I behind the veil have past, Oh, but the long, long time the world shall last."
Old Omar, said that, meaning—what? When you and I read that what does it say? Do you take it to mean that this is your day and that you are to make the most of it? That if you are going to amount to anything on this side of the veil you had best get busy? Do you know the value of time? Do you know enough to employ modern methods for your everyday work? Man or woman, are you a result getter or a procrastinator?

Speaking of modern methods do you know enough to use the want ad page of your own home paper for any legitimate want you may have? Or do you belong to that class of people who wouldn't advertise in any paper, don't you know?"

Do you know the efficiency of your own want ad page? Candidly speaking—do you?

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

"TIZ" for sore, tired, puffed-up, sweaty, calloused feet or corns.

"Sure! I use 'TIZ' every time for any foot trouble."
You can be happy-footed just like me. Use "TIZ" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "TIZ" and only "TIZ" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.
As soon as you put your feet in a "TIZ" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "TIZ" is grand. "TIZ" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.
Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

CHAPTER X.

Katherine was just as much amazed at meeting Hayes as he was at finding her at the door.
"I didn't know you would be here," Katherine apologized, "otherwise I—" Bob's expression silenced her. She had never seen such an expression in his eyes before. Katherine was radiantly beautiful today. She knew it. More than that, she had taken particular care to gown herself in an exquisite afternoon dress of dull blue, a gown that had been draped according to her own fastidious design. But in Bob's eyes there was no response to her beauty or her clothes or her pose. He didn't even attempt to disguise his disgust at her effrontery in invading Mrs. Slade's retreat.
"I want to see Mrs. Slade," Katherine finally announced.
"Upon my word!" his voice was low, but hoarse. "I never heard of such a thing as your coming to this house. What do you want here? Want to tell that little woman you're after her? What do you want here?"
"Will you kindly tell Mrs. Slade that I am here?" Katherine's eyes were hard and her mouth a thin strip of determination.
"First, I want to know what you're going to say to her," Hayes demanded.
"Whether I say it today or tomorrow doesn't matter," Katherine answered, quietly. "I'll say it. So you might as well let her know I'm here—and go."
"All right, but do you think you had better risk it? You look out! When she discovers—" Mary's entrance at this moment checked Hayes' warning.
She looked questioningly, first at Katherine, then at Hayes.
"I'll be back, auntie, in a very few minutes," Hayes remarked. "I've got to work on my car. This is Miss Strickland," and he shut the door.
"Oh—Miss Strickland," repeated Mary, very much pleased, but very much in awe of the senator's daughter. "You called on me once before, but I had a headache. I've often wished since I hadn't had it. Won't you take off your things and sit down. It's very kind of you to call."
Katherine thanked her and sat down. She had not expected to find such a sweet little woman in Mrs. Slade. The woman was so little, so fragile, so harmless and helpless in appearance. Even the old-fashioned cottage made its appeal to the girl's sensitive spirit; the shabby furniture gave her a vision of what Slade's earlier life with this woman must have been. Instead of her usual pose, she found herself quite a little at a loss to know what to do or say before the frank, sincere gaze of Slade's wife. The questions she had meant to blurt out soon after her arrival remained muted on her lips. Instead she found herself answering the questions that Mary Slade was asking.
She found herself telling the woman of her own struggles against increasing poverty, talking of her own hopes and ambitions.
"Mrs. Slade, I don't say this is a social call," Katherine found herself as frank as the woman at the other side of the table.
"You—you know all about my trouble, Miss Strickland?"
"Yes, that's what I'd like to talk to you about, without offending you, if I might. You see, this trouble comes very near to us—"
"How does it come near to you, my dear?" Mary interrupted.
"Mrs. Slade, Katherine set herself bravely to what she knew would be a bitter task. "My father is virtually a beggar. You know how we live! People think we're rich. Well—we're poor! We're getting poorer every day. Every penny is tied up in—politics. My father was the first to see Mr. Slade's strength. He is now living on Mr. Slade's future."
Mary nodded.
"Mr. Slade is a very important man," Katherine went on, "but no matter how much people admire him he can easily be ruined by a scandal."
"I haven't any desire to ruin my husband," Mary protested, quickly.
"No, I'm sure you haven't," Katherine was more at ease as the conversation progressed. "But you being here and he being a few miles away, of course, there's no excuse to be offered, is there? It is a scandal. Politically and socially he's ruined unless he comes back here, or you—"
Katherine paused, for the simple reason that she didn't have the heart to finish.
"Or I go away," Mary completed the sentence. "Yes, and if I go away—I know what that means. No, I'm not going away. Miss Strickland, you tell your father and his friends, from me—"
"Oh, no—please," Katherine objected. "I came quite alone, unknown to him."
"Well, you might as well tell him or anyone else that wants to know—"
"Oh, no, I couldn't, Mrs. Slade. I couldn't carry any messages. I came here to find out—" Katherine checked herself. The situation was suddenly becoming embarrassing.
"Well, now, you know," Mary answered, "there won't be any divorce."
"I see—yes," and she took up her gloves, preparatory to going.
"I'm very sorry," Mary explained, "that others should suffer through this, but that's how it stands. For once in his life Dan Slade is not going to have his own way." She smiled. "Now, let's talk of something else. I hear you draw pictures of your dresses—designs. Is that one of your own gowns?"
"Oh, yes," Katherine replied, amiably. "I often do little sketches for the fashion magazines, and I do busts. My friends think it's a sad, when as a matter of fact, it's for money, for clothes and things."
"I had no idea," Mary was all sympathy and understanding. "You're so young and need pretty things. That's one of the joys I've missed—dressing a daughter! You know," she began, suddenly, "I've heard a great deal of you, and you're not at all the young lady I supposed you were. You're just as simple and sweet and natural as you can be. And your affection for your father!"
Mary got up and, selecting the loveliest rose from the cluster in the vase, carefully wiped the stem and handed it to Katherine.
"Won't you stay for a bit of dinner? Better have just a bite."
"I must go," returned Katherine absently. Somehow or other she hadn't quite expected this sort of a visit.
"I hope I haven't said anything to trouble you," she hastened to add. "What I said about this ruining Mr. Slade is just an echo of what his friends say."
"My dear child, you haven't hurt my feelings. Perhaps you know something I don't know," she asked, suddenly. "Do sit down again. Stay just a minute. I'd like to talk some more. You're out in the world and I'm quite alone. People aren't as frank with me as they might be. Suppose I'm your mother—just let me say it—my husband wanted a divorce—he's old enough to be your father—we'd all get together to find out why, wouldn't we?"
"I suppose we would," and Katherine took the chair Mrs. Slade had indicated.
"What I want to know is why people think Mr. Slade wants a divorce? Why, isn't a separation bad enough?"
"I don't know that I—" For the life of her she could think of no answer to this directly simple line of questioning. "Well, there's only one reason I ever knew of," Mary continued, "when a man's so insistent. I guess you know the kind of reason I mean—a well—a younger reason."
"You mean—a woman?" Katherine's voice was cold and firm.
"Yes, I do. It doesn't seem to surprise you," Mary declared suddenly, noting that Katherine had known at once just what she had in mind. "Miss Strickland, I think you know something more than you're telling me, and you hate to say it. What would you do in my place?" she asked as Katherine's silence gave virtual assent.
"I?" Katherine asked vacantly. She thought a moment. Then quickly, earnestly: "I'll tell you what I'd do. I'd do what they all do. I'd save what's left of the affection I once had. It's no use standing over a man with the end of a chain in your hand; that doesn't get him back. I'd take his money, the luxury—I'd simply—well, I'd dissolve partnership and I'd go. I'd go to some place where life interested me and get what I could out of it. I'd live as I never had lived, and I'd make him pay."

"That's a new idea to me," Mary was listening intently. "I never thought of such a thing."
"And supposing, Mrs. Slade, that another woman did appear. I don't say there is one, but—"
"But is there?" Mary persisted.
"I didn't say so. But I do know this: If we do love anyone, and they really love us, they never get over it and we never get over it, either, for there's always something in our hearts that we can't—we can't forget. And take a man who's not young, like Mr. Slade, why, no other woman could be anything at all to him—I mean anything more than something to keep up his position."
"I see," replied Mary, thoughtfully. "Someone to sit in his box at the opera—someone to go about and do him credit. Miss Strickland, she paused a moment and looked at Katherine earnestly, "there is such a woman, and you know it. I believe, Miss Strickland, I believe the Lord sent you straight here to me."
"I only came to find out what you intend doing," Katherine answered, alarmed and not knowing exactly what Mrs. Slade meant. "I mustn't trouble you any longer."
"You're no trouble at all," said Mary, detaining her. "It's the doubt that troubles me. Miss Strickland, I know perfectly well you must have heard people talking. The words I want are in your mouth. Come, now, honestly tell me," she coaxed, "who is the busy?"
"Mrs. Slade," exclaimed Katherine, haughtily, unconsciously drawing herself up.
"I ought not to have used that word, I know," Mary drew a long breath, "but I—you can't blame me. Why, do you know what it would mean? It would mean two Mrs. Slades here in this town or—or—anywhere else's known. Two Mrs. Slades after all these long, respectable years! Why, it isn't human!" and she held up two accusing fingers. "Oh, no! Every one would be asking: 'Which Mrs. Slade is that—the old one or the new one he got?' He'd be out with Mrs. Slade No. 2, while Mrs. Slade No. 1 was home breaking her heart. Well, they don't catch me like that! Not much! If that's what it means, there's only going to be one Mrs. Slade, and I wouldn't stoop to be that one. I fought for his name when he was free, but if he isn't now, I wouldn't haggle over a man who didn't respect me enough to—No! She could take him and his name and his money and—I'd go to where people didn't know the sight of my face. Miss Strickland, there is another woman, and you know it. Out with it, like a good girl. "You are the first girl I ever loved," Pocahontas was just graduated and believed everything she heard, and so they were married.
The editor of a great magazine sent for a certain author who had submitted an unsolicited manuscript. "I am glad to make your acquaintance, sir," said the editor enthusiastically. "The story you sent us is perfectly splendid. But why use a nom de plume? Let us publish it over your own name and it will make you famous."
"I'm not after fame," objected the author. "It's money I want."
"But you'll get just as much money in either case."
"No, I won't. If I publish it over my own name my wife will get the money."
"I should think you would like him, Mabel. He wrote a play about you."

Sir Walter Scott's amanuensis and much esteemed friend, Willy Laidlaw, often found it difficult to keep up with the rapidity of his dictation, though on one occasion, having to wait for a second or two, he said: "Come, get on," and was answered: "Oh, aye, it is very easy for you, Willy, to say 'Get on,' but you forget I have every word to spin out of my brain"—T.
